Jesus the Messiah

At the end of our last study, we read that Jesus said to the Samaritan woman, "Everyone who drinks of this water will be thirsty again," and she responded, "Sir, give me this water, so that I will not be thirsty or have to come here to draw water." (John 4:14,15). Obviously, she didn't understand what He was saying to her spiritually about "living water." Many today also are confused about how to receive and enjoy the life offered to us in the gospel of Christ. In His continuing dialogue with the woman in our text today, Jesus explains what we need to know and believe in order to enjoy living water.

1. We must understand and embrace our profound need as sinners (16-19).

16 Jesus said to her, "Go, call your husband, and come here." 17 The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You are right in saying, 'I have no husband'; 18 for you have had five husbands, and the one you now have is not your husband. What you have said is true." 19 The woman said to him, "Sir, I perceive that you are a prophet.

Initially, it may look like Jesus, in verse 16, is changing the topic on this woman, but not really. He is going to help her receive His "living water" by showing her why she needs it. He immediately asks her a question about her sex life! Why does He broach such a sensitive, personal area? He does this so that she might grasp why she needs what He offers. We see that she deftly tries to deflect His question, but Jesus gently presses forward with her, and she must confess that He is at least a prophet. In Paul's extensive explanation of the gospel in his letter to the Romans, he does a similar thing. He begins by describing in detail why every human being is guilty before God and in need of divine redemption (see 1:18-3:20). Look also at the Westminster Shorter Catechism, Questions 18 and 19 regarding human sin:

Wherein consists the sinfulness of that estate whereinto man fell?

The sinfulness of that estate whereinto man fell, consists in the guilt of Adam's first sin, the want of original righteousness, and the corruption of his whole nature, which is commonly called original sin; together with all actual transgressions which proceed from it.

What is the misery of that estate whereinto man fell?

All mankind by their fall lost communion with God, are under his wrath and curse, and so made liable to all the miseries of this life, to death itself, and to the pains of hell forever.

We desperately need this "living water!

II. We must understand and embrace the uniqueness of the Christian faith (20-24).

20 Our fathers worshiped on this mountain, but you say that in Jerusalem is the place where people ought to worship." 21 Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem will you worship the Father. 22 You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews. 23 But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father is seeking such people to worship him. 24 God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth."

The woman raises a legitimate religious question, but one that also has the apparent intent of deflecting Jesus' piercing examination of her personal life. In verse 20 she points out that their religious commitments and assumptions are quite different, suggesting, perhaps, that His religious teachings might not be relevant to her. Jesus says in verse 22 that the Jews were correct and the Samaritans were incorrect, but, in verses 21, 23, and 24, He teaches her that now it makes no difference—true worship is done by the Spirit (the living waters), and therefore the locations of temples is an obsolete issue (Are you listening, American Evangelicals? There is now no theological or redemptive significance to the Temple Mount or to the city of Jerusalem or to the "holy land" of Israel, and nobody any longer has a "divine right" to those locations.). The salvation Jesus offers is unique. No other religion or philosophy can solve the

If we do not believe that the gospel of Christ is the only way to eternal life with God, we do not understand either our real need or the gospel of Christ.

III. We must understand and embrace the unrivaled majesty of Jesus Christ (25-26).

human predicament described in I. above. Only the gospel of Christ can help us.

25 The woman said to him, "I know that Messiah is coming (he who is called Christ). When he comes, he will tell us all things." 26 Jesus said to her, "I who speak to you am he."

Once again, it seems that the woman is seeking to put Jesus off by saying that He may have a point but that we should wait until the ultimate authority comes (Messiah) before we pronounce the final truth about things religious. Jesus here presents Himself, not just as Messiah, but also as the Deity Himself. Literally, in verse 26, He says to her, "I Am—who speaks to you," recalling, of course, the remarkable moment in Exodus 3:14 when God famously reveals His Name, "I Am," to Moses at the burning bush. In order to receive and enjoy the living water offered in the gospel, we must believe in Jesus Christ, as He is presented to us, in all His majesty, in the Scriptures.

Discussion Questions

1.	Why do so many of our friend	s, relatives,	neighbors,	and co-worker	s think the	gospel is not relevant to them? How can w	e help then	n see the re	levance of Chr	st to their li	ves?

2. Why does Jesus probe into deeply personal issues in the Samaritan woman's life? What should we learn from this?

3. What do you admire most about Jesus' encounter with this woman? What are the implications of your observations for us today?

4. What are the religious or traditional barriers today that keep people from listening carefully to the gospel of Christ? What can we learn from verses 20-24 about dealing with this reality?

5. Why must a person sincerely believe in the deity of Jesus Christ in order to have eternal life?
